INFOS

Trevor & Lisa, the Parisian Funk band, is back!

L.A. Nights, their new EP on Hi & Fly is a new milestone in the band discography, setting it to a next level. The title track is a cover of the famous Yasuko Agawa's track (itself based on Light of the world's "London Town") inspired by strong Zapp and West-Coast influences. Fat basslines, tight horn riffs and funky talkbox parts galore!

"Break Droppin'" and "The Battle" are infectious medleys played by the band with an extended line-up including extra brass, strings and percussions. In "Breaks Droppin'", you'll find a carefully selected mix of cuts, ranging from the Hawaiian Hal Bradbury's "You win, I Lose", to Julius Brockington's "This Feeling (Freedom)", passing through CTI and other sampler friendly tracks.

"The Battle" is a b-boy style up-tempo selection, mixing Latin influences with some classic battle cuts and evolving to a Disco finish, with a cover of the great Brothers' break "Under the Skin". It is 10' long, the beats & percussions are heavy and the extended band is in top condition. It won't let some rest to your feet for sure!

Last but not least, it's also the comeback of Hi & Fly, a French diggers' reference since 2000. So, one reason more to have a listen... Enjoy!
